The Eighth International Conference on Teacher Education

Passion and Professionalism in Teacher Education

The conference will take place on Monday-Tuesday
26-27 June 2023

The conference will be held in a face-to-face format
at the MOFET Institute, 13 Shoshana Persitz St. Tel Aviv

The MOFET Institute, The National Institute for Research and Program Development in Teacher Education and Education is pleased to invite you to:

The Eighth International Conference on Teacher Education: Passion and Professionalism in Teacher Education

In recent years, the entire world, including the education system, has seen rapid changes in its working practices, partially due to the Covid-19 pandemic.

This disruptive event led to a reevaluation of the processes involved in the recruitment, training and professional development of teachers.

The conference will bring together scholars, teacher educators, entrepreneurs and other stakeholders from different countries, in order to strengthen and promote ways to deal with the challenges of the teacher education and education system. The conference will address the various issues from three different perspectives:

- The local perspective
- The comparative-international perspective
- The entrepreneurial and development perspective

The conference will be conducted face-to-face in English.

Proposals for presenting research projects as well as educational initiatives evaluated through research in teacher education and education will be accepted for the conference. The following topics will be presented, but other topics are also welcome: modules for teacher education and professional development; teacher educators; innovative teaching practices and learning spaces (including techno-pedagogy); social-emotional learning; multicultural teaching and comparative studies; inclusion, equity and social justice; the relationships between parents and stakeholders in the education system; education for moral values, social commitment and sustainability; teachers' identity and social status.

The following categories of proposals are invited for submission:

1. Full session: A full session in which a few lecturers deal with one common subject. The session must include: Presentation of studies conducted in different institutes in Israel and/or abroad, and/or studies from different fields, and/or a joint collaboration between several partners. The full session is an opportunity to presenters to showcase their leading research and practice and to generate public discourse on them.
 - All the lectures in the session will be submitted and evaluated individually, and also as a whole entity, based on the specific answers for a full session and the evaluation criteria of a full session. A session chair will be chosen in advance and will be part of the submission answers.
 - 3-4 paper presentation.

Guidelines for preparing submission for a full session

2. Reversed full session: A session in which several lectures on one common subject are prerecorded and viewed by the audience prior to the session. The focus of the face-to-face session will be on a discussion of the session contents.
 - The session must include: studies conducted in institutes in Israel and/or abroad, and/or studies from different fields, and/or a joint collaboration between several partners (priority will be given to collaborations with the community).
 - In this new format, people wishing to participate in the session, will view the prerecorded lectures prior to the session, and the actual session will focus on a meaningful discussion and on forming study collaborations.
 - Each prerecorded lecture will last 10 minutes. After the individual lectures and the reversed full session have been evaluated, the lectures will be prerecorded and submitted to the conference organizers no later than Thursday, 6 April, 2023. Please ensure that you adhere to the guidelines for submitting a video recording.
 - Important clarification: There is no option to submit an individual reversed paper, it can only be part of a reversed full session when submitting
